

UNIQUENESS IN CHIANTI CLASSICO.

The Lamole di Lamole winery has its home in Greve in Chianti (Tuscany), within Italy's oldest and most famous appellation, Chianti Classico. Lamole di Lamole vineyards stand on one of the region's highest points, between 1150 and 2000 f.a.s.l. As a result, this location provides the ideal temperature variations, sunlight, and winds for excellent ripening of the grapes. Also, it provides elegance, richness, and complexity to the aroma and flavor potential of its wines.

TERROIR

At altitudes between 1150 and 2000 feet, the South and West facing vineyards enjoy a continental climate with low summer rainfall, pronounced winds, and excellent sunlight exposure. The permeable "macigno chiantigiano" soil (a mix of albarese and galestro stone) provides a good source of minerals to the vines.

SANGIOVESE CLONES

Lamole di Lamole has always strived to find the perfect Sangiovese clones for its terroir. Since 2008, we have only planted Sangiovese clones. Today, we have around 32 different clones planted. These clones produce loosely packed bunches with smaller berries and with a higher skin-flesh ratio. As a result, this skin-flesh combination gives our wines more richness and length.

SUSTAINABILITY

Our commitment to the organic farming of all Lamole di Lamole vineyards lies in the use of organic compost, the elimination of chemical fertilizers, and the rebuilding of historic stone terraces.

WINEMAKING PHILOSOPHY

Our wines are aged in casks made from premium French oak, which are similar in size to modern steel tanks. Furthermore, they allow us to preserve natural aromas and ensure that our wines are a true reflection of their provenance, terroir and that they have the right evolution. Consequently, the casks also help achieve excellent aging while reducing and balancing the effect of the wood on the Sangiovese grape's natural aromas.

OUR “CRU”

The Chianti Classico DOGG Gran Selezione from Lamole di Lamole is the result of a rigorous and selective harvest. This wine is produced only from grapes grown in our Campolungo Vineyard, hence its name. Additionally, the Gran Selezione di Lamole di Lamole is the perfect ambassador for the unique terroir.
